EXPERIENCE

Randall has a one-of-a-kind background in transfer pricing, having spent time in Big4, government (IRS APMA Program) as well as an international organization (World Bank Group) prior to joining DLA Piper. He therefore provides clients with broad perspective and the ability to provide big picture implications of policies and their impact on the US, developing countries, as well as across Europe.

Since joining DLA Piper, he has assisted a number of clients in operating model design and implementation globally, more than 25 bilateral advance pricing agreements and MAPs in 12 countries, financing structures, several large valuations of intangibles for cross border transfer, and defense-related strategies worldwide for a number of US and European-based multinationals.

As Head of the International Transfer Pricing at DLA Piper, Randall leads the cross jurisdictional transfer pricing practice outside the US.

Professional experience

- Provides strategy and client representation on bilateral APAs in 12 countries, including the design and implementation of a global APA strategy for a client in the consumer goods industry
- Called as an expert witness to provide written and oral testimony before a tribunal at the Netherlands Arbitration Institute on a case involving numerous transfer pricing issues
- Forged new client relationships by providing innovative thinking, significant credibility based on past experience, multi-country coverage from a single point of contact, and a client first approach
- As an IRS APA Team Leader, acted in a lead technical and negotiation role in a competent authority on several APAs with the potential for double taxation of more than US$1 billion
- As an IRS Competent Authority Analyst, negotiated successful and principled transfer pricing MAP and APA case resolutions with foreign competent authorities in 10+ countries on a wide range of transfer pricing issues
- Played a lead role in the development of APA programs and joint transfer pricing training alongside OECD in numerous developing countries while on secondment to the World Bank Group

CREDENTIALS

Prior Experience

Randall joined DLA Piper in 2015, where he has advised clients on preventing and resolving transfer pricing disputes in numerous countries. In addition, he has also been called as an expert witness in an international arbitration hearing involving numerous transfer pricing issues. He joined DLA Piper from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) in Washington DC, where he was a Team Leader responsible for leading transfer pricing case negotiations on behalf the IRS for some of the largest cases in the history of the IRS Advance Pricing and Mutual Agreement (APMA) program.

His last two years of employment at IRS, he was seconded to the World Bank Group to assist developing country tax administrations around the world with building capacity and developing alternative dispute resolution programs. Randall developed and led training workshops on technical transfer pricing and APA matters, drafted APA guidelines for several countries, and worked directly with tax administrations, finance ministry officials as well as the OECD on numerous policy matters related to transfer pricing. Prior to his time in public service, Randall spent time as a transfer pricing advisor with both a Big4 firm and an economic consultancy firm.

Recognitions

Randall and his London-based transfer pricing team have been consistently rated a Tier 1 firm by World Transfer Pricing. In addition, the team has won International Tax Review's UK Transfer Pricing Firm of the Year in 2017, 2018, and 2019.
