

Intellectual Property and Technology News (North America), Issue 49, Q1 2021

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY AND TECHNOLOGY NEWS

Intellectual Property and Technology News

30 March 2021

Around the corner

IN THIS ISSUE

- Editor's column

30 March 2021

Continue reading

- Non-fungible tokens: Emerging issues in the emerging marketplace

30 March 2021

Any digital asset, or a right in an underlying asset, can be tokenized to make an NFT.

Continue reading

- The Lanham Act's makeover – Congress gives new clarity and tools to trademark owners and applicants

30 March 2021

The Trademark Modernization Act of 2020 gives new certainty for litigants and new tools for challenging current registrations.

Continue reading

- Employee and independent contractor classification: Still the top legal issue in franchising

30 March 2021

Franchising rests on a basic premise that franchisees are independent contractors and not employees.

Continue reading

- Supreme Court Corner

30 March 2021

Numerous amici in American Axle urge the Supreme Court to take the case; update on USPTO v. Booking.com.

Continue reading

- The Pharmaceutical Corner

30 March 2021

The opinion may render functional claiming more difficult, but functional claims that follow its guidance may still have an important role to play in pharmaceutical patents.

Continue reading

- Understanding the USPTO guidance on patenting AI technologies

30 March 2021

The USPTO guidance opens the door for applicants to obtain patent protection for their AI technologies.

Continue reading

- Washington, DC grows telecoms capabilities with a new arrival

30 March 2021

Tony Lin has joined our Washington, DC office and award-winning Telecom group, bringing his vast experience in satellite and communications law.

Continue reading

- Recognized as a leading IP defense firm in the United States

30 March 2021

In its 2021 Law Firms Activity Report, Lex Machina has named DLA Piper among the leading intellectual property defense firms in the United States.

Continue reading