

New report on sustainability and ESG issues in the insurance sector

12 November 2020

Climate change, social inequality and political instability will have a significant impact on all businesses globally, particularly in the insurance market. Sustainability and ESG issues will be game changers, as demonstrated by the strong public debate on the connection between COVID-19 government support and building a resilient green economy.

Regulators and policymakers play an important role in creating the framework supporting sustainable insurance, leading to a multitude of global, multinational and national initiatives and requirements. But navigating this sustainability jungle can be difficult.

Our comprehensive new report – Addressing the Sustainability Imperative – explains major global initiatives and frameworks, and those at a national level in 19 countries. The report provides decision-makers, in-house counsel, sustainability officers and anyone else dealing with sustainability issues in the insurance sector an overview of current developments, and supports them in developing their sustainability strategies.

Access the full guide

Listen to report launch webinar recording

Listen to report launch webinar recording – US