Jürgen Taschke has broad experience in advising companies from all different sectors in the field of white collar, corporate crime and investigations. He focuses on managing regulatory risks as well as the defence of multinational organisations, especially in corruption, fraud and tax matters. His experience also covers the defence of organisations in environmental matters.

Much of Jürgen's work is international and involves contacts with prosecutors and regulators in Europe, the US and Asia. When it comes to cross-border matters, he works closely together with his colleagues from the Corporate Crime, Investigations and Compliance group, a number of skilled lawyers having the necessary experience on a local and international level.

He is EMEA Head of International Corporate Crime, Investigations and Compliance of DLA Piper.
