

AI Outlook

The latest developments around artificial intelligence in Washington and what these bills and trends mean for business.

KEY CONTACTS

Tony Samp
Senior Policy Advisor
Washington, DC | T: +1 202 799 4334
tony.samp@dlapiper.com

Steven R. Phillips
Partner
Washington, DC | T: +1 202 799 4313
steven.phillips@dlapiper.com

ISSUES

Can an AI system be named the inventor? In wake of EDVA decision, questions remain

23 September 2021
AI Outlook

Artificial intelligence is notable among the new technologies posing fundamental questions about the viability of the inventor's oath.

With the goal of countering China's tech ascendancy, the US Senate approves the US Innovation and Competition Act

16 June 2021
AI Outlook

The comprehensive technology policy and funding legislation strives to fund incentives for semiconductor chips production, along with aggressive diplomatic, national security and trade measures to ensure American leadership.

Europe initiates regulations on artificial intelligence; industry presented with opportunity to provide inputs

5 March 2020
AI Outlook

The White Paper on AI initiates a process that could potentially establish the world's first far-reaching regulatory framework for AI.

Congressional hearing to focus on facial recognition and national security

12 December 2019

AI Outlook

Technologies controlled by foreign governments and their implications for privacy and national security are expected to be a major topic.
