

Episode 3: Are corporates in the green driving seat?

THE CLIMATE TRANSITION PODCAST

24 May 2021

We have seen growing demand from corporates to buy power from wind and solar projects. In this episode, we are joined by Phil Dominy from EY as we look at how current agreement in these power purchase agreements (PPAs) is driving significant corporate activity on fixing the climate crisis. Are PPAs delivering the action we need? How can corporates work closely with renewable operators to do more and do it faster? How can we grow PPAs beyond a handful of off-takers and countries?

Subscribe to the podcast via iTunes, Spotify or your usual podcast platform.

DLA Piper · Corporate power purchase agreements: Are corporates in the green driving seat?