Craig has a broad civil litigation practice, with an emphasis on environmental and contaminated site litigation, infrastructure and construction related disputes, and real property claims involving the sale of land and commercial lease agreements.

Craig has acted as trial and appellate counsel on a wide range of matters before courts in the Province of Alberta. He has participated in mediations and private arbitrations and appeared before various administrative bodies.

Craig also provides strategic advice to clients dealing with a variety of commercial and employment related concerns.

Prior to pursuing his legal career, Craig studied immunology and infectious disease at the University of Alberta and worked in the public health sector.
