Jessie Buchan is a highly skilled intellectual property and regulatory practitioner. She has a vast experience in contentious and non-contentious soft IP matters, regulatory and marketing/advertising advice. Jessie handles the full scope of issues relating to the protection, enforcement and exploitation of IP for clients with a particular emphasis in the consumer goods, food & retail, and technology sectors.

She advises market leading and world-renowned brands on all aspects of brand protection, including trade mark prosecution, oppositions, licensing and commercial arrangements, parallel importation, anti-counterfeiting, copyright, passing off, consumer law, business names and domain names. Her focus on advertising and marketing extends to advising on the conduct on digital direct marketing, social media influencers, comparative advertising claims, and compliance with applicable industry codes and the Australian Consumer Law. She works closely with clients on food & consumer product import and export requirements, and has experience working with industry bodies and regulators on such matters. She also frequently advises on the rules and laws for conducting trade promotions in Australia, as well as coordinating the conduct of such competitions across the globe. She has led and acted for a number of clients in Australian Federal Court litigation concerning trade mark & copyright infringement, passing off and breach of the Australian Consumer Law.

In 2020, she was recognised as a Rising Star in Legal500 Australia Intellectual Property rankings, acknowledged for her responsiveness, ability to provide commercial and pragmatic advice, and dedication to going above and beyond to ensure that clients' needs are understood, often in the face of tight deadlines.

Beyond JPEGs: Innovation in fashion and luxury goods NFTs

17 December 2021

In October 2021, Dolce and Gabbana (D&G) sold its nine-piece Collezione Genesi non-fungible token (NFT) collection of digital / physical couture (including access to exclusive D&G events) for a record-breaking USD6.1 million. The sale dispelled the perception of NFTs being limited to niche internet culture and demonstrated their potential for use in fashion and the luxury marketplace.

Edmond Lau, Valiant Warzecha and Jessie Buchan explore the opportunities and risks of using NFTs, including the ability to streamline shared ownership of luxury assets, confirm product authenticity, facilitate environmental, social and governance (ESG) transparency and further personalize customer experiences.
