Tudor is a partner in the firm's Litigation, Arbitration and Investigations group. He has a diverse advocacy practice, successfully representing clients on a range of commercial litigation matters including breach of contract cases and shareholder disputes. He also represents clients in both domestic and international arbitrations.

Tudor regularly provides advice on the conduct of internal investigations and has represented numerous clients on matters related to fraud and asset recovery, including in the financial, communication, health, real estate and transportation sectors.

Tudor represents clients responding to investigations by regulatory agencies, including the Ontario Securities Commission and the Competition Bureau, as well as defending clients charged with regulatory and quasi-criminal offences. He also provides advice on matters related to corruption, money laundering and economic sanctions.

Tudor was a guest lecturer at Osgoode Hall Law School in 2011, 2012 and 2013 on the topic of shareholder remedies.
