Michelle Chung has developed a broad practice focusing on all areas of business and commercial litigation representing companies of all sizes and high net worth individuals.

- Litigation, Arbitration and Investigations

Her experience encompasses all aspects of the litigation process, including, drafting operative pleadings and responses, law and motion practice, and discovery. Michelle has a split of experience in complex commercial litigation, particularly defending companies against alleged violations of California consumer statutes, and Labor and Employment disputes.

Prior to joining DLA Piper, Michelle was an associate at a boutique law firm where she represented small and mid-range companies and learned to work efficiently without compromising quality.

Michelle also maintains an active pro bono practice by representing and assisting relatives and non-relative caregivers in obtaining legal guardianship over disadvantaged children.
