Jorge has an extensive experience in the energy, mining and regulation sectors. He has participated in local and international infrastructure and operational projects with investments of more than USD 10 billion in Peru, in the hydrocarbons, electricity and mining sectors.

His renowned practice in various legal aspects related to the construction and operation of electrical transmission systems, the construction and operation of hydrocarbon transportation systems and medium and large-scale mining investments, have allowed him to position himself as an expert in the development of projects in the country.

In addition, Jorge has experience in obtaining government permits for various projects and obtaining financing for projects through international multilateral banking; as well as the acquisition of land for the construction and / or expansion of several infrastructure projects. Today, Jorge co-leads the Natural Resources Special Project Group in Latin America for DLA Piper.
