Ashley Escudero focuses her practice on the defense of providers in the long-term care industry in lawsuits against residential care facilities for the elderly (including memory care), skilled nursing facilities, hospice providers, and continuing care facilities. Ashley advises and has successfully defended clients against claims of elder abuse, negligence, wrongful death, fraud, emotional distress, unfair business practices, violation of patient's rights, breach of contract, and breach of statutory duties. The strength of Ashley's practice — particularly in the high-risk jurisdiction of California — is based on her years of litigation in the industry and fundamental understanding of the unique nuances and challenges associated with aging services claims.
