Maxine Hicks focuses her practice on real estate development with a particular emphasis on large mixed-use, transit-oriented developments, including destinations for stadiums, entertainment, hospitality, club and resort projects. She represents clients on a wide range of matters related to real estate, transportation, construction, infrastructure development, redevelopment and public incentives.

Maxine also advises developers, owners and healthcare providers on real estate issues associated with medical office buildings, ambulatory surgery centers, long-term acute care hospitals and hospital campus projects.

Maxine has extensive experience in real property acquisition, development and leasing; planned communities; distressed assets; state and federal regulation of real property; mixed-use community governance; and public-private partnerships. She regularly counsels developers on legal issues related to builder programs; land sales regulation; condominium and homeowner associations; and stadium, hotel, spa, ski, marina and golf course developments. She also assists clients with site selection, incentive agreements, zoning compliance, contract negotiation, acquisition, construction, property management and lease negotiations.

Recognitions

Chambers USA has repeatedly recognized Maxine as having vast experience handling major real estate developments across the country. Clients say, "she is organized and has the ability to see the big picture while working in the weeds at the same time. She is also a great strategic thinker." Maxine continues to receive high praise from clients as an "intelligent, practical and business-oriented attorney." The directory has described her as "incredibly knowledgeable about acquisition, development and leasing matters," "highly regarded" and "a well-respected and highly able attorney with experience across the entire spectrum of work in the sector." Sources called her "an expert in condominium developments" and clients have called Maxine "a real community treasure."

In December 2017, Maxine was named a Law360 MVP. Maxine has been named a Georgia Super Lawyer and identified as one of the Top 50 Women Lawyers in Georgia. Real Estate Forum named Maxine Hicks to its 2017 Women of Influence list and in September 2010, Maxine was named to the Atlanta Business Chronicle's list of Who's Who in the legal community.

Inspirational Women in Real Estate 2020

11 March 2020

The Real Estate Industry sometimes suffers from a lack of female Role Models. For this reason, we are proud to present, in honour of International Women's day, the third edition of our Inspirational Women in Real Estate booklet. By continuing to highlight the stories of some of our women in Real Estate around the world, we hope to make our small contribution to engendering a more gender balanced industry.
