Recognised as a leading lawyer in technology and sourcing, Tim Lyons has experience in all areas of information and communications technology, including supply and outsourcing.

He has specific experience in delivering strategic advice on procurement legal services, focusing on large scale outsourcing transactions and complex upgrade and implementation projects. Clients know Tim as a safe pair of hands to manage their commercial and legal interests in these projects.

Tim also advises clients in respect of the collection, use and protection of their data. He has assisted clients in respect of their regulatory obligations when there has been an unauthorised disclosure of that data.

He frequently advises the Victorian Government and other purchasers of IT systems and products regarding issues specific to the information technology industry.
