David B. Parrish focuses on representing institutional investors in their alternative investments, working alongside Nicole Brenning, co-leader of the Firm's institutional investor practice, which represents more than 300 investors, both US and non-US based.

- Corporate
- Global Investment Funds

David primarily focuses on private markets, representing capital in primary commitments, co-investments (whether direct, syndicated or co-underwritten), LP secondary transactions, continuation vehicles, other sponsor-led transactions, separately managed accounts, and other portfolio-related matters (such as GP removals and LPAC issues).

David's experience encompasses all types of alternative investment strategies, including private and public market strategies. His private markets experience extends to buyouts, credit, real estate, venture capital, growth, energy, real estate, timber, infrastructure, commodities, mining, and agriculture; his public markets experience extends to all liquid alternatives, among them LDI, long-only, and absolute/relative return strategies. David also has substantial experience in seeding new platforms and acquiring stakes in sponsors.
