

부동산

부동산은 불확실한 경제 시대에 투자다각화와 안정적 수익을 추구하는 투자자들에게 매력적인 장기투자원으로 부상했습니다. 하나의 분야로서 부동산은 다른 투자자원들과 경쟁하는 동시에, 매입이든 임대든 최종고객이 만족할 만한 상품을 내놓아야 합니다. 그뿐 아니라, 많은 전통적 부동산 투자자들이 국경을 초월하는 포트폴리오를 인수하려고 하고 있으며 이는 글로벌 부동산 산업의 부상으로 이어졌습니다.

부동산 분야를 전담하는 500명에 이르는 DLA Piper 글로벌 팀 변호사들은 고객의 사업이 전 세계에서 필요로 하든 투자의 전 생애주기에 걸쳐 고객을 지원합니다. 저희는 부동산 비즈니스를 잘 이해하고 있으며, 이러한 이해는 여러 전문분야에 정통한 거래 Facilitator로서의 당사 명성의 핵심을 이룹니다.

저희는 금융, 펀드 조성, 인수 및 처분, 절세, 토지 이용, 환경법, 기획 및 개발, 건설 및 임대를 포함한 분야에서 통합 부동산 서비스를 제공합니다. 저희는 복잡한 구조화 및 협상 촉진이 필요한 고가치의 장기 프로젝트를 조율한 많은 경험을 갖고 있으며 그 과정에서 절세 확보, 법적·규제적 이슈 해결, 그리고 필요한 경우 소송을 수행하였고, 이러한 경험은 고객에게 도움이 됩니다.

Central Bank of Ireland Consultation Paper on Irish Regulated Property Funds

29 April 2022

On 25 November 2021, the Central Bank of Ireland (Central Bank) issued consultation paper 145 (Consultation Paper) to industry in relation to a proposal to introduce macroprudential limits on leverage and provide regulatory guidance to reduce the potential for liquidity mis-matches in AIFMD compliant property funds that are Irish-authorized and investing over 50% directly or indirectly in Irish property.

Data Centers

29 April 2022

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

The last 30 years have been driven by the arrival of new technologies such as the internet and smartphones. The COVID-19 pandemic, which has profoundly changed our professional and personal habits, has also amplified and accelerated the use of technology. Shopping has moved online, business meetings have become virtual meetings and streaming services have replaced going to the cinema. Today, the average number of emails sent per hour across the world is expected to reach 12 billion, and we could reach 48 billion connected objects in circulation by 2025.

Data Centers and ESG – two irreconcilable growth stories?

29 April 2022

As a new year starts and we reflect on 2021, it feels like two topics made headlines around the world more than any other: COVID-19 and COP26.

COVID-19, an increased frequency and severity of floods, wildfires and drought, and COP26 brought the importance of sustainability into sharp focus. How companies address climate change and other ESG risks is now viewed by investors, employees, customers and regulators as critical to businesses and long-term sustainability and value creation.

Data Centers in Australia: A Growth Market Segment for Post-COVID Recovery

29 April 2022

Fueled by the emergence of remote working, online schooling and virtual entertainment during the COVID-19 pandemic, and compounded by the growing impact of Big Data and the Internet of Things, Australian data center providers are experiencing significant increases in demand for their storage and processing capabilities.

Data Centers: The new logistics 3.0

29 April 2022

The COVID-19 pandemic has strongly affected real estate investors' views of the different types of real estate assets. The various restrictive measures taken by many governments over the past two years have disrupted our daily lives and have notably affected certain asset classes such as hotels and retail. While these properties were previously highly coveted by investors, these same investors are now more attracted to logistics centers or data centers that meet new needs.

Data center Real Estate in Nigeria – Build or lease?

29 April 2022

The Nigerian data center market is one of the fastest-growing markets in Africa. Increasing investments in the industry are largely driven by increased demand for data services, digitization, improved infrastructure, and rising e-governance. The COVID-19 pandemic has also affected the growth of the data center industry.

Data centers in Norway - updated national strategy provides new business opportunities

29 April 2022

With its cold climate, easily accessible renewable energy, competitive prices on electricity, a modern digital infrastructure and active support from the government, Norway - ranked as the world's most resilient country - is increasingly seen as a favorable location for international data center projects.

Data centers in the Netherlands: A shifting landscape?

29 April 2022

In the Netherlands the landscape for data center developments and operations is shifting. There's increasing discussion regarding the development of new data centers in the country. This is because of the impact of the booming data center market in the Netherlands and the effect it's had on the landscape and energy infrastructure.

Data centers – A Case for New Zealand

29 April 2022

As data centers continue to dominate the global technology agenda, New Zealand is riding the wave of this boom. Globally recognised as a rare pandemic success story, New Zealand provides the ideal economic and political environment for data center providers to establish these power houses while keeping green.

EC's proposals for reform of AIFMD and the ELTIF regime – how will the changes affect real estate managers?

29 April 2022

Following its review of the scope and functioning of the Alternative Investment Funds Manager Directive (AIFMD), the European Commission (the EC or the Commission) has concluded that the AIFMD's standards for ensuring high levels of investor protection are mostly effective, but that amendments are required which are intended to be targeted in scope but may have far-reaching effects for real estate fund managers.

Growing data center market in the Netherlands: What are some tax considerations?

29 April 2022

With the help of data centers, many individuals have been able to work from home since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic. The market for data centers in the Netherlands is experiencing rapid growth. The Dutch Data Center Association expects an increase in 211,000 m² of data floor in the coming years. In light of this fast development, clarity on the tax treatment and aspects of data centers and colocation services is becoming more relevant.

Revitalizing Kista – a unique collaboration in urban development in Sweden

29 April 2022

With a vision to reverse the downward trend in Kista, a suburb in the north of Stockholm, five of Sweden's most prominent property owners and developers have united in an urban development project, the likes of which has not previously been seen in Sweden. The companies Corem, Vasakronan, Kungsliden (Castellum), Revelop and Atrium Ljungberg will jointly invest more than SEK20 billion in the upcoming years, with the goal to turn Kista into an attractive area for investors, businesses and residents. DLA Piper has acted as overall legal advisor to the project manager in charge of this unique collaboration.

The rise of data centers in Northern Virginia

29 April 2022

Data centers are physical structures that house computing equipment for the purpose of storing and permitting access to massive amounts of data that is used to power the innumerable information services that we depend on every day, such as streaming movies, sending emails and browsing social media.

US data center leases in Germany – does one size fit all?

29 April 2022

Data centers are everyone's darling – urgently needed by the industry and increasingly popular as an asset class for investors. Developers' and operators' existing or planned projects are selling like fresh German pretzels. The big (US) players in this sector have no difficulty in leasing white space in data centers or even entire centers. On the user side we find the usual suspects – in particular US cloud service providers – dominating the market.

The Economic Crime (Transparency and Enforcement) Act: What does it mean for commercial real estate?

18 March 2022

The Government published the draft Economic Crime (Transparency and Enforcement) Bill together with a related factsheet on 1 March. The legislation will introduce a new “Register of Overseas Entities”, based on the beneficial ownership register which was first proposed back in 2017.

European Commission's Proposals for reform of AIFMD, UCITS Directive and the ELTIF regime

26 November 2021

Following its review of the scope and functioning of the Alternative Investment Funds Manager Directive¹ (AIFMD), the European Commission (the Commission) has concluded that the AIFMD's standards for ensuring high levels of investor protection are mostly effective, but that amendments are required which are intended to be targeted in scope, but may have far-reaching effects.

The Commission has now published new legislative amendments to AIFMD, the UCITS Directive² (UCITSD) and the ELTIF Regulation³ (ELTIF Regulation) (the Commission Proposal). The proposed amendments set out in the Commission Proposal will be introduced by way of an omnibus directive amending the AIFMD, UCITSD and the ELTIF Regulation.⁴

The Glasgow Climate Pact: What does it mean for Business?

23 November 2021

In this article, members of our Sustainability and ESG Steering Committee share their thoughts on eight key themes emerging from COP26 and what they mean for business.

ESG challenges in Real Estate ahead of COP26

14 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

In a few weeks' time, the eyes of the world will be on Glasgow for the 26th annual United Nations Climate Change Conference. Indeed, over time, environmental as well as social and governance issues have become real challenges for all individuals, businesses and markets, and the real estate sector is no exception. These concerns, which have increased since the COVID-19 pandemic, should not be seen as a brake but rather as a real driver for growth and innovation.

"Green Loans" or "Sustainability Linked Loans" - an overview

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

ESG, green loans and sustainability linked loans – these buzzwords in the field of green financing are gaining more popularity but the details are still a little unclear. Here we shed some light on these terms and provide a more differentiated view on the options available for real estate players.

Asia's road to COP26 won't be paved with coal

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

On the eve of the United Nations 26th Conference of the Parties (COP26), Asia's policy makers are acting fast to curb coal production as global investors turn towards renewable energy. Are the efforts of Asia's advanced economies turning climate ambition into reality?

COP26 and the future of real estate

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

With COP26 just around the corner, there will be few businesses not sharpening their focus on sustainability strategy. While most have already implemented measures to help reduce their carbon footprint, the increasing gravity of the climate crisis, and growing list of countries setting bold commitments to reach carbon neutrality by 2050, appear certain to accelerate the need for change. The real estate industry has no small part to play in this, with the built-environment being responsible for almost 40% of greenhouse gas emissions globally.

Climate-responsive buildings – fighting the effects of climate change in Lagos state

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

The whole world is facing climate change and Nigeria is no exception. To address this, and to prevent the increase in greenhouse gases, governments and international organizations must take immediate and drastic action at both local and global levels. What is the situation in Nigeria?

Data centres in Norway – Rapid expansion and fundamental advantages

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

With its cold climate, easily accessible renewable energy, competitive prices on electricity and active support from the government, Norway has fundamental advantages in terms of investment opportunities in data centers and attracts global interest.

Demystifying electric vehicle charging points in UK real estate

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

In November 2020, the UK government revealed plans to end the sale of new conventional petrol and diesel cars in the UK by 2030. Recent government proposals seek to oblige every new non-residential building and every non-residential building undergoing a major renovation with more than ten car parking spaces to have one EVP and cable routes for an EVP for one in five spaces. So it's important for both landowners and tenants to consider the implications and impact on commercial real estate.

Green Buildings: The call for sustainable retrofitting in Zimbabwe

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

Climate change has imposed upon modern society the need to review past construction practices in-order to reshape the planet's disconcerting future of the planet. This article will examine the increasingly popular concept of green buildings as a means of achieving environmentally sustainable construction practices in Zimbabwe.

Innovative green investments – the future of modern development

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

For several years we have seen an increase in investments using ecological innovations, undoubtedly influenced by the smart technology used in the construction sector and investors' and developers' growing environmental awareness of the advantages such technology can bring.

Legal aspects of connected constructions: Smart buildings – Think outside the building

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

Integrating new technologies in construction plans to create truly connected and data-driven buildings also introduces new regulatory and data protection challenges. It raises numerous questions as to the implications of these developments for the responsibility of all parties involved in the construction industry.

Sustainable Real Estate Financing Options in Kenya

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

The real estate sector in Kenya is a fast-growing sector, with reported exponential growth in recent years. This article covers the major challenges of the real estate sector in Kenya and outlines the need for sustainability in the financing of real estate developments.

Sustainable buildings – real estate tools against climate change

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

As sustainability and global commitment towards reversing climate change have come at to the forefront of policy-making and corporations' long-term strategies, property investors and the real estate sector are also looking to get involved and make a change to the buildings they develop and operate, implementing, embedding and enhancing sustainability to their existing properties.

The exhaustion doctrine under the California Environmental Quality Act

12 October 2021

REAL ESTATE GAZETTE

Over the last 15 years, the long-established common law mandate to “exhaust administrative remedies” before filing a lawsuit challenging a public agency decision has been eroded under California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) jurisprudence. This development is largely the result of a conflation of the exhaustion requirement with the separate jurisdictional prerequisite of “standing” by courts interpreting CEQA.

Sustainability and ESG

In 2019, the global value of professionally managed commercial real estate (CRE) was estimated to be US$1.6 trillion. Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) is no longer an emerging trend in this large global asset class – it is now an important component of CRE investment and is integrated into the investment decision-making of many of the world's leading real estate investors. In some jurisdictions, real estate, owners and operators must also contend with social issues, particularly affordable housing, which means taking into consideration property regulations, community engagement, employee relations, brand and reputation.

Increasingly, prudent real estate investors and operators understand that setting and reporting on ESG-related performance indicators – including on energy usage, waste management, greenhouse emissions and employment rights – can have a positive long-term impact on the value of their properties.

Key sustainability and ESG issues in the Real Estate sector include:

- Green buildings and leases: With the built environment reportedly responsible for over 40 percent of global greenhouse gas emissions, many builders and developers have been working closely with governments as they strive to achieve emissions targets under the Paris Agreement on climate change. Energy efficient buildings are the tip of the iceberg; the real estate market is also responding to demand for green homes and commercial buildings that feature water-saving and greywater recycling technology, upgraded insulation and a renewable energy supply. Real estate investors and owners have developed green leases that build in sustainability features as legally binding contractual conditions, such as biodiversity protection targets for contractors, retrofitting requirements for landlords and energy usage limits for occupiers.
- Green financing and impact investment: Innovative green financing mechanisms have unlocked investment in sustainable real estate. Certain real estate investors are seeking more than economic returns; they also desire to invest in projects and properties that will have a positive social impact (eg, affordable housing; solar projects, wind farms). One challenge for these so-called social impact companies is attracting capital by demonstrating sustainability despite today's competing ESG standards and ratings systems that often fail to capture real performance. Developing ESG due diligence tools can help to identify risks and clear the path for sustainable investment.

- Increased information, reporting and disclosure requirements: By harnessing new data tools and technologies, the real estate sector has been improving on both internal and external reporting against sustainability and ESG standards. Many jurisdictions impose mandatory sustainability disclosure requirements, such as the EU's Non-Financial Reporting Directive. Leading businesses also participate in voluntary reporting programs, such as the Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) rating system, the Energy Star rating system and Global Reporting Initiative standards. The challenge is in navigating these at times competing reporting systems and keeping up with evolving standards and expectations.
- Towards a circular economy in the built environment: A circular economy aims to gradually decouple growth from the consumption of finite resources, rethinking materials sourcing, energy use, energy supply and waste management at all stages of the business life cycle and across the supply chain. Leaders in real estate have applied circular economy principles to save costs while embedding sustainability into their business strategy. Successful real estate businesses have developed smart circular designs which reuse materials or existing structures to create resource efficiencies and minimize waste.
- Climate change and environmental planning: Participants in the real estate sector are already well aware that property values are vulnerable to the physical impacts of climate change. Sea-level rise, drought, and heat stress, for example, increase risks to entire metropolitan areas – not only to individual real properties and locations. In some cases, environmental planning laws lag behind the modelling on likely climate scenarios, and developers and investors must take the initiative to prepare for impacts and climate-proof their investments.
- Regenerative solutions and community benefits: Real estate projects that fail to engage with local communities risk damaging their reputations. Some real estate companies have built success by ensuring their real estate developments benefit the community – for example, through community revitalization, sensitivity to access to transit, and regenerative solutions.
