

Professional Liability

DLA Piper has significant experience in the prosecution and defense of professionals and organizations including lawyers, accountants, aging services providers, physicians, hospitals, design professionals and others being sued for malpractice. We have participated in many of the largest exposure and high-profile cases involving professionals and organizations. We also have significant experience in arbitration and mediation as alternative strategies to litigation.

Over the years we have developed contacts with some of the finest expert witnesses in the country, with whom we often consult in our work. We also engage services that provide access to information about opposing experts, including those from prior testimony. Where appropriate, we employ sophisticated computer technology to manage documents, transcripts and information.

CAPABILITES

Representation of Accounting Firms

We have broad-based experienced lawyers, who represent accounting firms in all aspects of their practice. We regularly represent some of the largest accounting firms in the world in major high-stakes lawsuits throughout the country involving alleged failed audits in the context of class-action complaints, or claims brought by trustees in bankruptcy or receivers. In addition, our representation includes claims relating to sophisticated tax-related and advisory services. Moreover, we regularly represent these firms in investigations before various regulators including the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Internal Revenue Service, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, and various boards of accountancy.

Representation of Lawyers

On numerous occasions, when law firms and lawyers are involved as litigants, our lawyers have been their counsel of choice. We have represented prominent law firms of all sizes in matters involving legal malpractice claims, allegations of employment discrimination, investigations by government agencies and law firm dissolutions. In addition, we represent clients in bar disciplinary proceedings and advise practicing lawyers on ethical issues that arise during legal representation.

Representation of Physicians, Hospitals and Aging Services Facilities

Our litigation team has significant experience defending medical malpractice cases of all types and complexity. We represent The Johns Hopkins Health System Corporation and many of its physicians, and we provide insurance defense advice for many other medical practice groups and physicians. Our team also has extensive experience working with and defending aging services facilities in state courts around the country. We have also served as personal counsel for physicians involved in malpractice cases. Most recently, we have been defending aging services facilities and professionals in healthcare claims related to the global COVID-19 pandemic in state and federal courts around the country. As a result, we are familiar with the broad range of issues applicable to professional liability cases in the healthcare and aging services sectors.

We are at the forefront of efforts to challenge the qualifications of expert witnesses and the foundations of their opinions. For example, we recently won an appeal from a victory at trial in the Circuit Court for Baltimore City in which we convinced the court to strike the entire testimony of a psychiatrist who testified on both standards of care and damages issued against our client. We also have experience representing healthcare providers in professional disciplinary matters before licensing and disciplinary boards. We have handled matters before physician, dental and physical therapy boards.

Representation of Design Professionals

We also represent various other design professionals, such as architects and engineers.
