George Vlavianos has a vast experience in dispute resolution with a focus on energy and constructions disputes.

He has considerable experience advising owners, contractors and engineers on a wide range of complex, multi-party construction disputes and arbitrations across the Middle East, Europe and the North America, including insurance claims arising out of large-scale construction projects.

In addition, George has a significant experience in handling energy-related disputes for national and international energy companies. He regularly conducts arbitrations under various ad hoc and institutional rules.

The 2021 ICC Rules: Presentation and commentary

28 October 2020

On 8 October 2020, the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris (ICC), unveiled its revised Rules of Arbitration due to enter into force in January 2021 (the 2021 Rules). Notably, this is the third amendment of the ICC Arbitration Rules in a decade, the two previous taking place in 2012 (the 2012 Rules) and 2017 (the 2017 Rules).
