

Episode 5: What should we expect from COP26?

THE CLIMATE TRANSITION PODCAST

6 July 2021

The UK will be in the spotlight later this year as Glasgow hosts COP26 negotiations.

In this episode, we're joined by Ambassador P. Michael McKinley as we look ahead to COP26 and the best that businesses can hope for. Will this mark a step change in the energy transition? Are we putting too much faith in politicians to lead on that transition? How much can businesses lead and, if so, how much will COP26 help them?

Subscribe to the podcast via iTunes, Spotify or your usual podcast platform.

We'd love to hear from listeners. Please get in touch with any thoughts or comments at enrsector@dlapiper.com. We'd also be grateful if you take a moment to rate and review the podcast wherever you found it, so it's easier for like-minded listeners to find us too.

DLA Piper · What should we expect from COP26?